According to the Traditional Chinese Medicine wolfberries or Goji berries promote the enrichment of Yin (Yin / Yang), tonify the liver and kidneys, nourish the blood and moisten the lungs. The chemical composition of the berries comprises essential amino acids, as well as a number of vital trace elements - phosphorus, zinc, calcium, iron, copper, potassium, magnesium, sodium and selenium. Goji berry combines vitamins B1, B2, B6, A, E, C.

It is believed that Goji berry has one of the highest vitamin C contents of any fruit in the world. The berries of Himalayan Goji herb have been used in the Traditional Chinese Medicine for more than 2000 years as the most powerful natural remedy against skin aging.

The daily use of Himalayan Goji products improves cellular metabolism and accelerates the growth of new cells that make the skin softer and suppler.
